An Educational Mistake.

Whether or not a college education is advantageous depends entirely upon the ability of the recipient to absorb and utilize such an education. Unfortunately such a view of the case is seldom considered by parents and guardians who are inclined to send their children to college simply because it is considered the proper thing to do. Consequently we find throughout the country thousands of young men who have passed through college acting as cheap clerks, bookkeepers or even as can conductors and restaurant waiters. Having learned no mechanical trade for which they may be adapted and being untrained by nature for a profession, they go through life discontented with their lot and vaguely believing that the world owes them better treatment because they have gone through college.—Los Angeles Times.

POLLY LARKIN

"Talk about silence, Polly," said a friend the other day, "why, you don't know anything about it. I have sat in a room as watcher beside one who had been called to lay down her earthly cares and troubles and go to a fairer land than this, where we are told the walls are of jasper, the gates of pearl and the streets are pure gold. All the suffering was over. I ought to have been glad and joyful, but I wasn't, for I was fond of the one who had gone from us, and I was sorry for the ones who were left and who were heart broken over their separation. The quiet sleeper lying in the casket with hands folded and a look of unearthly peace on the marble face, not even the tick of a friendly and sympathetic clock to be heard and only the swaying of the curtain at the open window to break the quiet. The silence was awful, Polly, but you have been there like nearly everybody else and know all about it, and I really think these lonely vigils make better men and women of us. There is something so pure about the silent sleeper and there is something so overwhelming and heart-rending in death. There is another silence, or rather solitude, I should say, that produces much the same effect on my nerves, and that is to sit by myself at the ocean side on a dull, gray cloudy day, and see the breakers coming, wave on wave, until they break into white-caps on the rocky shore. It is grand, Polly, but it nearly always overcomes me. But the most overpowering silence I ever endured was in Virginia City. I had been there for months, and day and night the heavy machinery that nearly shook the town and was fairly deafening to strangers, was never still. One night something about the machinery broke somewhere about 1 or 2 o'clock in the morning. All the machinery stopped and the effect was like magic. Every one in the town, men, women and children, awoke terrified by the awful and sudden silence, and most of them poured into the streets to find out the cause of the terrible quiet that had settled down over the town. It was just as if the universe had stopped suddenly, and there was no more rest in that town until the ponderous machinery was again in motion. Then the inhabitants went to their couches and slept the sleep of the just."

The song, "I Wish the Men Were all Transported Far Beyond the Northern Sea," must have originated in Besjukovschtschina (the name is enough to rattle most men), a state in Russia. It is probably the only place in the world that is run entirely by women. The state is made up of seven villages, each presided over by a mayoress, and the whole under the superintendence of a lady named Taskka, who acts as president. There are women magistrates, women preachers, women police, women doctors, and in fact every capacity in the state is filled with women. The roads are made by women, the women sell milk and deliver letters. If you have a difficulty with your neighbor in this state and want to bring an action you must go to a woman lawyer, and if there is anything in your house to be stolen, it is not the courageous man who does it, but a burglar of the fair sex. No place of any importance is filled by a man. How intimidated the poor men of this state must be. They hardly dare intimate that they have a soul of their own. They are back numbers, and are content to see the women take the reins of government into their own hands. That the women have succeeded in dispensing justice in a faithful and judicious way is admitted, and that they are prosperous in the seven villages is shown by statistics. Whether man-suffrage or the right to vote has been given to the stronger sex the history of the place fails to state. The woman-suffragists of the United States ought to send their fallen brothers a copy of their by-laws. Evidently the women of Besjukovschtschina rule wisely and well, for there seems to be no dissatisfaction among the stronger sex, no pleading for their rights, but they are content to let politics and state affairs in general move on in the even tenor of their way, and have accepted the inevitable with a resigned and cheerful spirit. If they want to figure in public life, hold office and take the reins of government into their own hands, the world does not know of their aspirations, for they never whisper it and keep the longing hidden within their own hearts.

Children have quaint ways of expressing themselves that are amusing, and yet at the same time we find that they have their artless baby talk and ideas changed if we could. The following is a baby's prayer, and if it did not reach the throne of grace, then there is no chance for the petitions of the grown-up children. In her little white nightgown, dainty four-year-old Grace knelt beside her crib and lisped: "Now I wake, this little child home to sleep." I pray Thee take, if I should die little I wake, this little child home to sleep." Her prayer has been answered, and she has been taken home to sleep, but it has left a sorrowful and empty household.

Another little girl in saying her prayers would say them so fast that she would get the words sadly jumbled together. She astonished her mother one night by breaking off in the middle of her prayer and asking, "What does 'fashidie' mean, mama?" "There isn't any such word," she replied. "Course there is," said the little one. "Now I lay me down to sleep, fashidie fore I wake," etc. Then it dawned on her mother she had been saying the words so fast that she did not get their meaning. "Fashidie" interpreted was "if I should die."

A little four-year-old friend of Polly's was allowed to visit a school one Friday afternoon when there were to be recitations, music and readings to pass the afternoon pleasantly. The program went through without a hitch, then the teacher, out of compliment to the little stranger and to please the scholars, asked her if she couldn't speak a piece for them. She accepted the invitation and toddled up to the platform. Then her courage failed her for a moment. Every little rhyme and bit of jingle had been forgotten. She stood looking at the sea of faces for a moment, when a happy thought struck her. She would say her prayers. She recited them from beginning to end, but left off the "Amen." "Sounded just like a piece where you left off the 'Amen,'" she said afterward.

BRIEF REVIEW.

Coal Mines in Ocean Depths.

Coal mining is being carried on this summer in the waters of Long Island sound. Scattered all along the shores of Long Island and Connecticut between New York and Montauk Point are the wrecks of coal barges and coal schooners that have been abandoned by their owners and by the insurance companies that had insured the cargoes. During the past winter one of the submarine boats that has been experimented with in the sound has located a lot of the wrecks of coal barges while the work of testing the value of the boat was in progress. The wrecks were buoyed, and where there was proof that the owners of the cargoes had abandoned them the wrecks were charted. Since then a number of venturesome capitalists have organized a company that will soon get to work hauling the coal from these wrecks and sending it to markets where it may be disposed of.

We Need Macaroni Factories.

After a successful endeavor to introduce macaroni wheat into this country the Department of Agriculture is confronted with the discouraging fact that there is no factory at which to market the product. Macaroni, it should be explained, requires a certain species of hard wheat for its manufacture. Efforts have been made to use the ordinary American wheat for this purpose, but they have not been entirely successful, and at present nearly all the macaroni used is imported. The department sent abroad and secured from Algiers and Russia the particular kind of wheat used in the Italian and French macaroni mills, and has succeeded in making it grow in several parts of the West. Now the authorities say there is an opening for some bright young macaroni maker and an accommodating capitalist.

Diamonds in Meteorites.

The largest iron meteorites come from the Canyon Diablo, in Arizona, and were discovered about ten years ago. Of this famous "fall" Professor Ward, the natural history collector, has seven large specimens and twenty or more smaller ones. The surface of the larger ones is covered with indentations or pits scooped out by the air through which they fell, as if by a chisel. Sometimes holes were thus bored entirely through these openings, that the specimens might be suspended for more effective display. The Canyon Diablo meteorites are remarkable in being one of the two kinds that contain diamonds. The diamonds are black and microscopic, and have no commercial value.

The Smallest Postoffice.

The smallest, simplest and best protected postoffice in the world is in the Straits of Magellan, and has been there for many years. It consists of a small painted keg or cask and is chained to the rocks of the extreme cape in a manner so that it floats free opposite Tierra Del Fuego. Each passing ship sends a boat to take letters out and put others in. This curious postoffice is unprovided with a postmaster, and is, therefore, under the protection of all the navies of the world. Never in the history of the unique "office" have its privileges been abused.

College for Women in Japan.

The rich Japanese family Mitsui has presented an extensive piece of ground near Tokyo for the purpose of founding a woman's university. Three other Japanese gentlemen have subscribed the sum necessary for erecting university buildings. The work has been started, and it is hoped that the university will be opened at an early date. Many lady students are expected to join, many Japanese ladies of good family having assisted at the medical and polytechnic lectures at the existing Japanese University.

The hat factories of the United States give employment to 135,000 persons, who turn out a finished product valued at $25,000,000 annually. Of the gigantic business New York has the lion's share, there being about $6,000,000 invested in the manufacture of hats and caps and fully 2500 hands employed. The value of the trade in New York last year was about $10,000,000.

Last year 11,000 tons of American agricultural machinery was landed in Southern Russia. Three vessels arrived there recently with 20,000 tons, in all valued at $1,250,000.

Many scions of European royalty hold military commissions before they are old enough to walk.

CURRENT NEWS

CALIFORNIA.

ALAMEDA.

Helen Suhr, 16 months old, fell from an upper window at her home in Oakland and escaped injury by falling into a bunch of calla lilies, which kept her from striking the ground.

Track Repairer Jacob Johansen was run over on the West Oakland mole by the race track special train. Johansen's head was severed from his body. His arms and legs were also cut and crushed by the car wheels. Johansen had been in the employ of the Southern Pacific Company for the past six years. He leaves a wife and six children.

Calls for sixteen additional teachers to go to the Philippines have reached the University since the last detachment of island instructors was sent to Manila on the Sheridan. A request for more teachers was made just before the Sheridan sailed and a telegram from Superintendent of Instruction Atkinson asking for ten additional teachers has reached Mrs. Mary L. Cheney, the secretary's appointment secretary. The teachers will be sent on the next transport.

AMADOR.

The old Gunther mine in Amador county is about to be unwatered and breasting will then be resumed.

The Austrian Hill mine at Cave City, is to be reopened and worked by the hydraulic process. Ditch and reservoir building are in progress.

BUTTE.

The largest gold dredger in the country is now being lowered into the river situated west of the river in South Thermalito, about two and a half miles west of that place and below the Chinese ferry in the Crocker tract. It is a small pond near the town of Oroville. The Gold Dredging Company and the first of a series of five. The machine is being operated by electricity from the Butte County Electric Power house on Butte creek. A running crew of eight men is employed, and the ground is being handled for less than four cents per cubic yard.

DEL NORTE.

News of two enormous timberlands in redwood timber lands comes from Del Norte county. One, which has been closed, consists of the purchase by Isaac Minor of 20,000 acres of fine timber in the Kraft tract, near Crescent City, for the reported large price of $500,000. The other deal is being closed, and consists in the sale of the Home and Chas. tracts in the same county of about 25,000 acres, presumably to the principal of the same buyer, for a figure which is not yet public. It is the intention to erect a sawmill at once on the Kraft tract, and it is also on the program to build a railroad from the lands to Cheto, in Southern Oregon, a distance of about twenty miles.

FRESNO.

GLENN.

The special election held throughout Glenn county for a county high school resulted in a handsome majority for the proposition after a spirited contest. The fight was between the citizens of Willowas against the outside precincts.

KERN.

The famous Arcola spouter has been capped. The company's storage tanks and sump hole are full of the product of the well and it was found necessary to stop its flow for the time being.

LOS ANGELES.

Foreman Carson W. Prosser of the Southern Pacific lumber yard was instantly killed while attempting to couple cars loaded with lumber. Thirty-two-foot material was placed on thirty-foot cars, leaving too small a space between the cars, and the engine driver, Prosser's head was caught between the timbers and his skull crushed.

The Dunkards' church at Covina was destroyed by fire. The origin of the fire was rather peculiar. A swarm of bees had domiciled themselves in the sacred edifice and a small fire designed to smoke out the intruders destroyed the entire building.

MARIN.

The new Catholic Church of the Assumption at Tomales was dedicated June 16th by Archbishop Riordan with imposing ceremonies. The cost of the handsome stone edifice was $20,000.

Reinhold Holzhter, for eighteen years the faithful keeper of the signal at the Point Loma light, has been long and valuable service. More than once during his services in the light-houses Holzhter has saved people from drowning, and only a few months ago he was the recipient of a medal of honor. For this he received a medal a few days before his death. He was 58 years of age. A wife survives him.

MERCED.

The Merced City Trustees awarded the contract for the construction of a sewer system to McElroy & Shetter of Merced. The cost is to be $38,800. The plans call for severing the entire city.

MARIPOSA.

A postoffice has been established at Hite, seven miles from Jerseyville, and James C. Jensen has been appointed postmaster.

MONTREY.

William Tucker, aged 17, with several companions, went for a swim in the Salinas river, which resulted in the drowning of Tucker. After two hours' hard work the body of the drowned boy was recovered. It was frightfully distorted, showing that Tucker had been seized with cramps, doubtless from the coldness of the water, and was unable to help himself.

MENDOCINO.

While attempting to arrest a itinerant gypsy queen at the parade grounds at Covelo, Marshal Keating was attacked by a muscular baboon belonging to the Gypsy queen. The animal loyally came to the aid of his mistress and gave battle to the officers, and only loosened his hold on Keating when lasses swung at him shut off his wind. Keating was badly bitten and blood poisoning is feared.

NAPA.

When about 400 yards from the depot at Napa, the San Francisco train ran into an open switch upon which stood four box cars. One of these was completely demolished, and the locomotive of the passenger train was badly wrecked. A search was made for the trainmen, but they were not found. Engineer Rutherford suffered a sprained ankle, but Fireman Clem Smith was more fortunate and escaped uninjured.

ORANGE.

The Christian Endeavor Convention held at Santa Ana, after much discussion gave Santa Cruz the State Christian Convention in 1902, Berkeley falling out of the contest to get the next State president in the person of L. S. Rogers. The Santa Cruz delegation was well organized and came down to Santa Ana bringing many strong workers for the next convention.

RIVERSIDE.

Within ten months almost a score of art wells have been uncovered at Riverside, and that heretofore worthless section, by an ample supply of water, is rapidly being transformed into a prolific and fruitful valley. Watermelons and cantaloupes are now ripe there, a fact never before known.

SAN FRANCISCO.

Yu Sing was slain by a highlander as he stood in his doorway at 9 St. Louis alley. He was shot in the region of the heart. The highlander, as usual, made his escape.

Three swindlers who are known to the police on both sides of the continent were captured by Detectives Thomas Ryan, Thomas Gibson and Thomas Dillon after a chase extending over three weeks. The leader of the gang, Frank M. Fagenbush, alias Bush Fagen, has been ordered to stand under the names of Charles Gordon, H. E. Rodgers and C. S. Stickney. He has a national reputation as one of the cleverest confidence operators known to the police. C. Crosby and H. A. Barton, his accomplices, depose to success in keeping their identity hidden, but it is thought that their records will come to light before many days have passed.

SANTA CLARA.

Efforts are being made to obtain the establishment of a regular weather bureau in Santa Clara. In response to a request made by Postmaster Hawley and other citizens, A. G. McDevitt, Weather Bureau Director at San Francisco, has replied that while the drafts on the funds of the department may prevent the establishment of a regular service, he thinks it likely that a special fruit service may be obtained in view of the prominence of that section for fruit raising.

SANTA CRUZ.

The narrow gauge passenger train from Santa Cruz to San Francisco was wrecked while rounding a curve near Santa Cruz. The fireman and engineer were badly injured, the former's legs both being crushed, which will necessitate amputation. The engineer's injuries are not so serious, and he will probably recover.

SAN DIEGO.

E. S. Babcock has deeded thirty-eight acres of land on North island, on the south side of the entrance to San Diego bay, to the Government for the location of a battery of rapid-fire guns.

SAN JOAQUIN.

Stockton is to have a large oil refinery, and in it will be centered one of the largest oil refineries ever established in California. The refinery is to cost $200,000, and is to be a modern structure in every sense of the word, in addition to being the largest in California.

SACRAMENTO.

Miss E. T. Blount, a passenger from Los Angeles, India, was robbed of her purse on the train that arrived at Sacramento from the south. Railroad Detective Ahern arrested Ed. Towers, the porter, and found the purse in his linen locker.

SUTTER.

Judge Davis of the Superior Court of Yuba county has decided that which holds that a marriage contracted in Reno by a person who has been divorced less than a year by a California court is void. The action was by C. A. Rand against Clara Rand for the purpose of obtaining a decree annulling such a marriage.

SAN BERNARDINO.

Otto Klein, one of the best known and apparently most successful young business men in Redlands, is missing, and a score of creditors are mourning his unexpected departure. Constable Koehler has charge of his establishment.

Spagnoli and family were there, it being the first time that favorite resort. The young members of the party indulged in dancing and other amusements, and a glad time was spent by all.

Geo. H. Simmons, who had charge of the Keystone Company's store at Amador City, but who left for Colusa county about two years ago, to take a position in J. J. O'Rourke's store in that city, has been promoted to the Colusa Sun, by being placed in full charge of the American Bargain House—a well known mercantile house of Colusa.

A large quantity of cement has been ordered from the Amador County Bank. The cement is of the best quality, and is being used for the foundation of the Amador Ledger. The sale of the Ledger has disarranged the plan, and the cement will be resold for other purposes.

Wm. Tam received word yesterday, from the Chichizola sawmill, that his son, who was killed by a log, was found by the Electric Company's sawmill on Tiger creek, that Anton Bessichini was accidentally killed. As near as could be learned, he met his death by being crushed by a log. He was single, and making his home sometime at Volcano and sometime at Jackson. His remains will be brought to Volcano for burial.

Spring cures are specially dangerous unless cured at once, serious results often follow. One Minute Cure acts like magic. It is not a common mixture but is a high grade remedy.—Kerr's Pharmacy, Jackson.

Mrs. Buehl has just returned from a visit to San Francisco. She took her daughter Janie, for the purpose of getting the advice of surgical experts regarding her lame foot. She has been crippled from infancy, and of late her foot has manifested a tendency to shrink, accompanied by loss of sensation. The young lady was left in the city under surgical care. The foot will be placed in a plaster of paris cast for a month.

We understand that vague rumors have been circulated in one or two places in the county that smallpox exists in Jackson at the present time. There is not the shadow of foundation for such reports. Neither smallpox nor any other disease of a contagious nature has existed here for nearly a year. Jackson is to-day as healthy as a town can be found in the state. Any reports to the contrary have their origin in pure credulity.

TROUBLE IN CAMP.

Two Men Clubbed at Tebeaud Reservoir.

The camp at the Tebeaud reservoir, where 200 men are employed in the work of completing the dam under contractor A. L. Stone, was the scene of an exciting scrimmage in the early part of the week. It appears that two men named John Conley and John Herbert, who had been working at the Spring Gulch camp, but who had quit, were paid off, reached the saloon kept by G. D. Calvin about 8 o'clock Sunday evening. Conley was under the influence of drink; his companion was sober. They asked for something to eat and were directed to the cook house of the company. Thither they repaired, and wanted to know if they could get something to eat, saying they had money to pay for it, and showing a $20 gold piece. The Chinese cook told them it was after supper hour. Thereupon Mr. Hall, the timekeeper, appeared, and wanted to know if they were employed on the works, and learning that they were not, he ordered them out. Soon Superintendent Tofflemire came in, and undertook to settle the matter in his own vigorous way. He got a club—about three feet long and between two and three feet long, and after a few words, struck Conley over the head, knocking him down, and at the same time breaking the club. He next went after Herbert, striking him a heavy blow over the head with the broken club—still an ugly-looking and dangerous weapon. The blow dazed Herbert, and opened a sore on the forehead. From the blood flowing freely, Herbert hastened to get away as fast as his condition would permit, when Tofflemire, as Herbert says, threw the club after him and chased him some distance. Conley had escaped up the ditch. Herbert came to Jackson. He was covered with blood when he reached here about two o'clock Monday morning, and had his wounds dressed by Dr. Lindcott. He asked district attorney Vicini for a warrant for his assailant but was refused until the officer had investigated the case. The district attorney went to the reservoir the same day, and after learning the particulars from other sources as far as he could, he decided to issue a warrant. The warrant charges the belligerent superintendent with assault with a deadly weapon, and after learning the particulars from other sources as far as he could, he decided to issue a warrant. Transfer of the Plymouth Consolidated.

Plymouth Consolidated—The Empire and Pacific mines at Plymouth, owned for many years by the Plymouth Consolidated Mining Company, in which corporation Alvinza Hayward and W. S. Hobart were the largest stockholders, have come into the possession of A. Hayward and the Hobart estate. The transfer was made on the 3d inst., on account of the failure of the company to meet the payments due Hayward & Co. It is generally believed that this transfer will lead to the early resumption of work upon this property. The mine produced an average of $60,000 per month for five years. They were worked to a depth of 1700 feet, when the fire caused the shut-down.

The proposition of deep mining, now so popular on account of the developments at other points along the lode, was scouted in those days. But it is very likely that areas of ore as large and rich as any heretofore encountered have been discovered in the vicinity of the famous property. Plymouth has reason to expect another revival of business as the outcome of the change of ownership of the Empire and Pacific mines.

Argonaut—Sinking operations are in progress at this mine. The litigation with the Kennedy is not yet terminated, but the Argonaut executed a bond to indemnify the Kennedy in case the judgment in favor of the former company should be reversed in the court of last resort. This result is regarded as so improbable that the Argonaut concluded to carry the shaft into the disputed territory, and gave the bond for that purpose.

Peorlee—Crosscutting for the ledge at the 800 level has reached a distance of 30 feet from the shaft. It is expected to cut the ledge at 50 feet. This crosscut is being driven west, as the west end of the ledge is believed to lie in that direction. From surface indications, there is quartz to the east, and prospecting in this direction will be in order later.

Kennedy—This company paid a dividend of five cents per share for the current month, amounting to $5000. Total dividend paid to date, $1,801,000.

Gwin—This mine paid a dividend of 15 cents per share in June, 1901, amounting to $15,000. It has paid $85,000 in dividends this year. Total amount of dividends paid, $230,000.

Central Eureka—This company has paid a total of $20,000 in dividends. The last dividend of five cents per share was paid in April last.

Later in the day an information was filed by the District Attorney in the Superior Court, to which the defendant pleaded guilty, and was fined $100, which he thereupon paid, and was discharged.

The weather is very pleasant now, all that could be desired.

Lighting Up the Coliseum.

The Romans have the hideous habit of periodically lighting the Coliseum during the tourist season with Bengal lights and, what is more amazing still, usually succeed in making a financial success of it, although no one was ever known to go twice.

There is the additional abomination in these days of a big brass band and a chorus of 100 voices in an invocation to the Flavian amphitheater. The effect is tremendous, but somewhat stunning to those who are accustomed to their Coliseum empty and flooded with peaceful moonlight, where pictures from the past rise with the clearness of second sight, and no sound is heard but one's own breathing or the song of the nightingale. Contrast with such a scene the red, blue and yellow Bengal lights, the smoke, the confusion, the hundred shrieking throats and the clang of the brazen instruments! Imagination shrinks and curses the Roman of today with whom such a thing is possible. But is it his fault? As I said before, it is a great financial success, and the Italians certainly do not patronize it. Query, Who does? Rome Letter in Fall Mail Gazette.

How They Broke Up.

An amusing story is related in "Canadian Savage Folk" of the manner in which an adjournment was taken by a mass meeting. A missionary who had started a school among the Indians met with opposition, and the meeting had been called in support of the rival scheme.

There were several speakers who denounced the school in existence. We replied vigorously, showing the efficiency of the school and denouncing in turn the methods adopted by the opposition. An Indian chief produced some specimens of work done at the school, and several speakers supported the work as it was being done. The climax was reached when a gentleman rose and said:

"I move the whole thing bust!"

The chairman put the motion.

"It is moved and seconded that the whole thing bust!"

The audience sprang to their feet and, waving hats, yelled "Busted!" and made for the door. Thus ended the first and last opposition in that matter.

UNDER AN UMBRELLA.

Romieu, the famous Parisian wit, was one day caught in a shower and forced to seek refuge in a doorway of the Opera House. It was 6 o'clock already, and he had an engagement in the Cafe de Paris for that very hour. The rain fell in torrents. There was no carriage to be had. He had no umbrella. What was to be done? A gentleman with a large umbrella passed by. Romieu was seized with a sudden inspiration. He rushed out and grasped the stranger by the arm and gravely installed himself under the protecting umbrella.

"I am overjoyed to see you," he immediately began. "I have been looking for you for two weeks. I wanted to tell you about Clementine."

Without giving the stranger time to express his surprise Romieu rattled away with gossip and anecdote until he had led the unknown companion to the door of the Cafe de Paris. Then he glanced at him with a face of well feigned astonishment.

"Pardon, monsieur!" he cried. "It seems I am mistaken."

"I believe so," said the stranger.

"Good gracious!" added Romieu. "Be discreet. Don't repeat what I have told you."

"I promise you."

"A thousand pardons!"

Romieu basted within the cafe and amid great laughter told the adventure to his friends. Suddenly one of them said:

"Your cravat is rumpled."

Romieu put his hand to his neck and turned pale. His pin, a valuable sapphire, was gone. On further examination his purse and watch were found to be gone. The man with the umbrella was a pickpocket.—London Tit-Bits.

The Opal Superstition.

There is one superstition of wide range and influence that is directed against one of the most beautiful objects in nature, the opal. A man in my town failed in business, and what do you think he did? Took his opal ring into the yard and smashed it to pieces with a hammer! He ascribed his bankruptcy to that opal, and he intended neither to suffer such misfortune again nor to allow any other one to do so by inheriting or buying that ill starred property.

One of the most amusing instances of a trust in wrong things is reported from New York, where a man took an opal to a jeweler and asked him to sell it, as he had had nothing but bad luck since he owned it. His business ventures having failed, his children having suffered illness and the old scratch having been to pay generally. The jeweler found the gem to have been an imitation. Its falsity must have been obvious to everybody except the victim, because the opal is the stone that has never been even passably imitated. —New Lippincott.

His Emancipation.

BEVERLY, Sept. 16, 1771.

Ran away from Josiah Woodbury, cooper, his house place for seven long years. Josiah Old Mell, alias Trial of Vengeance. He that lost will never seek her; he that shall keep I will give two Bushel of Beans. I forewarn all Persons in Town or County from trading said Trial of Vengeance. I have bore all the old (does) I can find for joy, and all my neighbors rejoice with me. A good Riddance of bad Ware. JOSIAH WOODBURY.

It Yielded.

Queer Indian Beliefs.

There is an old and quaint theory of the small Indian tribe of the Bella Coala, which inhabit British Columbia in about latitude 52. They believe that there are five worlds, one above the other, and the middle one is our own world, the earth. Above it are two heavens, and under it are two underworlds. In the upper heaven is the supreme deity, who is a woman, and she doesn't meddle much with the affairs in the second world below her.

The zenith is the center of the lower heaven, and the base of the lower gods, in which live the sun and the rest of the deities.

Our own earth is believed to be an island swimming in the ocean. The first underworld from the earth is inhabited by ghosts who can return when they wish to heaven, from which place they may be sent down to our earth. If then they misbehave again, they are cast into the lower of the underworlds. From this bourne no ghostly traveler returns.

The Bella Coala are sun worshippers for Senex, the sun, the master of the house of gods, who also is called "the father" and "the sacred one." Is the only deity to whom the tribe pray. Each family of the Bella Coala has its own traditions and its own form of the current traditions, so that in the mythology of the tribe there are countless contradictions. When any one not a member of a clan tries to tell a tradition which does not belong to his clan, it is like a white man trying to tell another's joke—he is considered as appropriating the property right which does not belong to him.

Hard Ducks to Kill.

The screaming wail on a hard duck to kill. Its hide is very tough and is thickly covered with feathers and down. Besides the bird is a great diver, one of the kind that can "dive at the flash" when hunted with the old arm that flashed when fired. It is of very little value for table use, being so tough. The only way to manage it at all is to skin it and parboil it in a big pot with plenty of water. The negroes make caps of wailon skins.

One can dive quicker, go down deeper, remain under water longer and come up farther away than any other duck that frequents our waters. I remember once I succeeded in killing a wailon, and, being short of game for the table, I determined to cook my bird. I got a negro to skin it, giving him the hide for his trouble. After being cleaned we put it in a great pot full of water and let it boil for an hour. After awhile I wanted to see how the cooking of my duck progressed and lifted the top off the boiling pot, but there was so much steam escaping I could not see into the pot and struck a match over it. The wailon was so fat, it disappeared and has never been seen since.—Baltimore Sun.

HOW BIG SEA TURTLES FEED

Take Big Balls of Grass Onto Sea and Eat While Swimming.

With my gastronomic taste I naturally was very curious to know just what kind of terrapin are caught in these waters, for the dish is one much sought after by epicures and forms part of the menu for every first class hotel on the coast. I was told that none is caught about here, but was invited to a sea turtle hunt. Let the reader imagine a turtle weighing all the way from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds, and not long ago one was turned over on the beach near Miami that weighed more than 1,600 pounds. Of course I am giving the largest weight, for the average weight of those caught along the coast is about 500 pounds. After they are caught the turtles are kept for a long time, their captors feeding them on cabbage, lettuce, turnips, carrots and cranberries.

The study of this monster shellfish is a most interesting one. In order to get rid of the parasites that cling to their shells they often enter fresh streams to enjoy a bath, but they are extremely timid and take flight at the least noise. The hunter knows, however, that the turtle feeds in brackish streams where the tide falls rather low and where the turtle grass grows in greatest profusion. The turtles cut great quantities of this grass and then roll it into a ball, containing it as they roll it with the clay in which the grass grows, and in this way, when they have managed to amass a goodly supply of provisions, they wait for high tide and float away seaward, feeding as they float.

The professional hunters are quick to detect these balls, and just the moment they do so they set their seines and send their peggars, as the men are called, in search of the feeding shoals. Men are the only enemies the turtles have, however, for bears, raccoons and other animals native to Florida destroy great numbers of them.—Jacksonville (Fla.) Cor. Baltimore American.

Drawing the Line.

A good story is told in Missouri at the expense of its once famous governor, Claiborne E. Jackson. Before he solved the enigma of love he had married five sisters in reasonable lapses of consecutiveness. After one wife had been lost and appropriately mourned he espoused another, and he kept his courting within a narrow circle of his own relatives, for he rather liked the family.

The antiquated father of these girls was almost deaf, and when the governor went to this octogenarian to ask for his surviving daughter the following conversation ensued:

"I want Lizzie."

"Eh?"

"I want you to let me have Elizabeth."

"Oh, you want Lizzie, do you? What for?"

"For my wife."

"For life?"

"I want to marry—her."

"Oh, yes. Just so. I hear you, boy."

"I'm precious glad you do," muttered the governor.

"Well," slowly responded the veteran, "you needn't halloo so that the whole neighborhood knows it. Yes, you can have her. You've got 'em all, my lad, but for goodness' sake, if anything happens to that poor misguided girl, come and ask me for the old woman!"

Jackson solemnly promised that he never would.

Origin of "Whig."

Several reasons have been assigned to account for the word "Whig," universally known to all the English speaking people. By some the word is supposed to be a contraction of a longer one, "whiggamore," which in some parts of England and Scotland, especially Scotland, signifies a drover or herder.

It was in 1679 that the word first became common in the British isles, when the struggle was in progress between the peasantry and the aristocracy to have or not to have the bill passed by parliament to exclude the Duke of York from the line of succession. All who were opposed to placing the duke in the line of succession were derisively called "whiggamores," or "drovers," just as the city duds of today speakers of the "grangers," the "grays," the "chin whiskers" and the "hayseeders."

But Scotch tradition gives altogether a different reason for the existence of the word. It is this: During the early religious wars in Scotland the weakest of the factions used the words "We Hope in God" as a motto. The initials of these words were placed on a shawl, and "W. H. in G." and soon all the followers of that clan were given the title of "Whig," which was afterward attached as a party nickname.

Journalistic Errors.

I do not allude to what are obviously mere misprints, such as when The Morning Post announced at the head of its fashionable intelligence that Lord Palmerston had gone down into Hampshire with a party of friends to the "Sole" sprains in the leg. It is a tradition which does not belong to his clan, it is like a white man trying to tell another's joke—he is considered as appropriating the property right which does not belong to him.

MY MORTALITY.

"Thy writ, 'Mortal, thy life is but a span,' And yet I feel that art and sky Are ever mine, even forevermore That I and mine can never, never die."

And yet I know, how well, how well I know, That in the future somewhere hidden lies A day, the day of days, when I shall see my eyes A moment supreme, when I shall close my eyes

To open them on this my world no more, When friends will hold my hands upon my breast And say, 'Dear soul, here work is done. Let us now lay thy gently to thy rest.'

Springtime with bud and bloom will come and go; The busy world will still rush madly on; The whizzing air and sky will be as those Who will not know that I have come and gone. —Dr. Grace Peckham Murray in Harper's Bazar.

GUNS FOR OLD GLORY.

The First Foreign Salute Given to the American Flag.

The little Ranger ran slowly between the howling French frigates, looking as warlike as they. Her men swarmed like bees into the rigging, and her colors ran up to salute the flag of his most Christian majesty of France, and she fired one by one her salute of 13 guns, says Sarah Orne Jewett in The Atlantic.

There was a moment of suspense. The wind was very light now. The puffs of smoke drifted away, and the flagging sails seemed to loiter overhead. Would the admiral answer back, or would he treat this bold challenge like a handkerchief waved at him from a pleasure boat? Some of the officers on the Ranger looked incredulous, but Paul Jones still held his letter in his hand. There was a puff of white smoke, and the great guns of the French flagship began to shake the air.

One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, and then were still save for the echoes from the low hills about Carnac and the great Druid Mount of St. Michael.

"Henry Gardner, you may tell the men that this was the salute of the king of France to our republic and the first high honor to our flag," said the captain proudly to his steersman, but they were all huzzing now along the Ranger's decks, that little ship whose name could never be forgotten while her country lives.

"We hardly know what this story means, gentlemen," he said soberly to his officers, who came about him. "I believe we are at the christening of the greatest nation that was ever born into the world. The day shall come when America, republic though she may be, will salute no foreign flag without receiving gun for gun!"

Wesley a Book Lover.

Wesley was to the end of his life a lover of a good book. Though the Bible was his chief study, he would have agreed with Matthew Arnold that a man who did not know other books could not know that book as it should be known. He constantly urged his preachers to read. "You can never be a deep preacher without reading," he used to say. "Any more than a thorough Christian can be a young man."

He said his work as an evangelist left him no time for reading he wrote: "Hence your talent in preaching does not increase. It is just the same, but not deep. There is little variety. There is no compass of thought." What would not some of us give for that volume of Shakespeare, annotated throughout by his hand, which John Pauson destroyed after his death for fear that the weaker brethren—2 Temple Bar.

Rare and Curious Gems.

The rarest and costliest of gems, though not always esteemed the most beautiful, are pigeon's blood rubies, fine opals and diamonds that are pure but shed a distinct glow of blue or pink. A very perfect pearl of generous size and lustrous green, tinted a rarely beautiful golden green, was valued at over £200. A faultless green pearl is very rare.

A curious stone is the alexandrite. It is a dark green stone that is polished, cut and set, very like a fine topaz or amethyst, in large showy rings surrounded by diamonds. By the light of day the alexandrite has no special beauty save its fine luster, but directly a shaft of artificial light strikes the dull stone deep gleams of red flash out of it, and the stone is then as bright as the fire of the sun.

The well to do patron of the place has been attentive to the cashier for some time, and now, business being slow, he has been deemed the time propitious to speak.

"If you will be mine," he urged as he leaned over the desk, "every comfort that you may desire will be yours. True, I am no longer young, but I have money, and I can provide for you as few young men could, and surely the material side of the marriage question is worthy of some consideration."

She said nothing, but gently touched the cash register, and the words "No Sale" sprang into view. The captain will do you more good than a good time. A Thoroughbred.

Don't be a thoroughbred. A thoroughbred is well enough in cattle and dogs, but very disgusting among men, for the reason that among men a thoroughbred means a man who devotes too much time to having fun, to being a good fellow. SPRINKLING WAGONS.

The modern sprinkling wagon is very different from the old timer. The chief improvement is in the spray head, which enables the driver to control the flow of water much better than the old style. Thus, whether it is a dirt or a macadam road or a stone paved or asphalted street, there can be supplied from the modern street sprinkler just the amount of water required to lay the dust in it without waste.

The spray head on each side has its own valve rod running to the driver's seat, with a step there for the foot. The driver can operate both heads at once, or he can run only one head. He can shut off one or open either one at pleasure. With this sort of wagon the expert driver leaves behind him dry sidewalks with perfectly defined limits, and when he comes to a carriage on a street car upon which he doesn't want to throw water he shuts off the flow on that side and keeps the other going. Sprinkling wagons are made in various sizes, ranging from 150 gallons to 1,000 gallons capacity. There are 20 sprinkling wagons sold in this country nowadays where there were once only a few years ago. This great increase in their use is due in large measure to sanitary reasons, and to the great extension of good roads and to the common desire for comfort.

Sprinkling wagons are used nowadays commonly in many smaller towns and villages where they were never thought of some years ago. And American sprinkling wagons are now found all over the world wherever sprinkling wagons are used.

They are exported to Australia, Cuba, Peru, Brazil, South America, South Africa and Europe. The modern sprinkling wagon that the traveler chances to see in Paris or Berlin or Hamburg came very likely from the same factory as the one he saw here before he left home going through his own home street.—New York Sun.
